

Journey stick activity sheet

During their travels through the Bush, Australian Aborigines sometimes attached natural materials to sticks in chronological order. These journey sticks were like maps helping them to recount their journey to others.

You can make your own using a stick and attach things that you find by tying them on with string, wool or elastic bands.

Challenge - can you use your journey stick to write a recount of your walk?

This can be done:
With an adult
Outside
Any age
